OROMOCTO FIRE DEPARTMENT

YOUNG FIRESETTERS

Children playing with fire causes hundreds of deaths and injuries each year. Preschoolers and kindergartners are most likely to start these fires, typically by playing with matches and lighters, and are most likely to die in them.

Important!

Children experience fire interest. They may ask questions or show an interest through playing with fire trucks or cooking on a play stove. This is healthy, but it is time to begin educating about fire. It is important for adults to discourage unsupervised fire starts. Fire happens when children begin to experiment with fire using matches and lighters. Many fires happen when young children are left alone. Parents must have clear rules and consequences about fire misuse.

Store matches and lighters out of children's reach and sight, up high, preferably in a locked cabinet or container.

Teach young children and school-age children to tell a grown-up if they see matches or lighters. Children need to understand that fire is difficult to control; it is fast and can hurt as soon as it touches you.

A child with an interest in fire can lead to fire starting and result in repeated firesetting behavior.

Use only lighters designed with child-resistant features. Remember, child-resistant does not mean child-proof.

Children and fire are a deadly combination. Some children play with fire out of curiosity, not realizing its danger. Troubled children may set a fire as a way of acting out their anger, disappointment or frustration. If you suspect your child is intentionally setting fires or unusually fascinated with fire, get help. Your local fire department, school, or community counseling agency can put you in touch with trained experts who know how to teach children about fire in an appropriate way.
